DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arvidsson ('889) in view of Steczynski ('850)

. Arvidsson ('889) discloses a cutting tool, comprising two parts having cooperating connecting surfaces (12,13) of serration type, which individually comprises a plurality of ridges (16), which are mutually separated by grooves (14) and the pitch between the ridges in the respective connecting surfaces being one and the same. Arvidsson ('889) lacks the disclosure of widths of two or more grooves positioned one after the other in a series in one of the connecting surfaces increasingly progressively from a first groove to a last groove in the series.

Steczynski ('850) discloses such an arrangement. Applicant is directed to figures 4 and 4a of Steczynski ('850). Thus, one of ordinary skill in the art of connecting surfaces for tools would have been motivated to update the grooves of Arvidsson with the grooves positioned one after the other in a series in one of the connecting surfaces increasingly progressively from a first groove to a last groove in the series in the manner as taught by Steczynski and thereby gaining, predictably, the commonly understood benefits of such adaptation, that is, a firmer connection; economy of design and cost of production.

Hence, the substitution would be predicted as having a reasonable expectation of success.

With respect to claims 3-5, 8-11 and 13-17, the claimed width enlargement would have been an obvious matter of design choice to a skilled artisan since such a modification would have involved a mere change in the size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. It appears that there would be no new or unexpected result from such a modification.

With respect to claims 6, 12 and 18, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the claimed location, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art. It appears that there would be no new or unexpected result from such a modification.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-18 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
